

Would you rather have to hop like a bunny everywhere for a day or have to wear giant, floppy bunny ears to school for a week?

Would you rather find one giant chocolate egg the size of a watermelon or 100 tiny chocolate eggs hidden all over your house?

Would you rather have a nose that twitches like a rabbit's whenever you're nervous or have a fluffy white bunny tail that you can't hide?

Would you rather be the one who hides the Easter eggs or the one who has to find them?

Would you rather eat nothing but chocolate for the whole Easter Sunday or eat nothing but raw carrots for the whole day?

Would you rather visit a country where it snows during Easter or a country where you can celebrate Easter on a sunny beach?

Would you rather organize a huge Easter party for all your friends or spend a quiet day watching movies and eating chocolate alone?

Would you rather take part in a giant public egg-and-spoon race or an extreme Easter egg hunt in a dark forest?

Would you rather have to dye 1,000 eggs by hand or have to bake 50 Easter cakes in one day?

Would you rather have a tiny chick that sits on your shoulder and gives you advice or a lamb that follows you around and plays your favorite music?

Would you rather discover that the Easter Bunny is real or discover a secret garden where it's always spring?

Would you rather have to wear a suit made of yellow chick feathers or a hat made of real, blooming tulips?
